To commemorate Israel Ludlow's historic survey of the Greenville Treaty Line in 1797, the Holmes County Engineer will be establishing permanent brass monuments (see front cover) at important points along the line in 2020.

On August 3, 1795 the Treaty of Greenville was signed between the United States of America and twelve Native American tribes of the Northwest Territory. U.S. Surveyor General Rufus Putnam hired Israel Ludlow to survey the treaty line. On July 9, 1797, Ludlow and his crew began the survey of the Greenville Treaty Line along the banks of the Tuscarawas River near Fort Laurens. On a bearing of South 78° 50' West, Ludlow surveyed the treaty line and established blazes (axe marks on trees) along the line for 153 miles to make it readily identifiable to Native Americans and American settlers alike. The Greenville Treaty Line cuts across 30 miles of what is today known as Holmes County, Ohio (see line on main map shown in green).
